Texas Comptroller requires registration for ag sales tax exemption

Farmers and ranchers in Coke County will need to register for a sales tax exemption number in order to receive tax savings on agricultural inputs after the first of the year.

"In lean times like the drought devastation this year, the state sales tax exemption can be the difference between farmers and ranchers staying in or going out of business," said John Ross Copeland, president of Coke-Sterling County Farm Bureau. "A registration number will prevent abuse of the system by those who are not qualified to receive the exemption."

Registration can be com-
