Tasks could change by the hour, especially with Texas weather!

3. Reuse and recycle. Farmers and ranchers are resourceful and would rather reuse than refuse the service of something on the farm.

4. There are no excuses. A job is a job, and it needs to be done.

5. Remember that you reap what you sow. Extra effort in the beginning often means a better end result.

6. Always be aware of your surroundings. Don't get in between a cow and her calf. It's a mistake you only make once.

7. Duct tape and baling wire. They have a special place on the farm. They can fix anything, and hold together stronger than glue.

8. Work as a team or independently. Some jobs farm kids will complete alone, and others are a team effort.

9. Take initiative. Step up and help out. Offer new ideas or pitch in when an extra hand is needed. If you know something needs to be finished, do it. And if you don't know what needs to be done, ask.

10. Show respect. When you work for someone, odds are they were in your shoes at one time or another. They have experience and valuable knowledge on the task at hand. That deserves respect. Stop. Listen. Learn. And if a better way exists, approach it in a proper manner.

11. Be a good neighbor. Lend a helping hand. Drive the tractor. Run some errands. Or help work cattle. Being a good neighbor doesn't cost you.

12. The power of prayer. Pray for rain, for the crops and pastures, for better market prices. Pray for our neighbors, family and friends and for strength and guidance. Because farming and ranching takes a lot of faith.

Sometimes the lessons were tough. Sometimes funny. But they were always valuable, and those lessons extend far beyond the fence to school, sports, careers and life in general.

Farm and ranch kids learn how to find success in life by diving into jobs and projects. And one thing is for sure, Texas agriculture is a great teacher
