

followers who were walking from Jerusalem into the country. 13 They rushed back to tell the others, but no one believed them.

14 Still later he appeared to the eleven disciples as they were eating together. He rebuked them for their stubborn unbelief because they refused to believe those who had seen him after he had been raised from the dead.[d]

15 And then he told them, "Go into all the world and preach the Good News to everyone. 16 Anyone who believes and is baptized will be saved. But anyone who refuses to believe will be condemned. 17 These miraculous signs will accompany those who believe: They will cast out demons in my name, and they will speak in new languages.[e] 18 They will be able to handle snakes with safety, and if they drink anything poisonous, it won't hurt them. They will be able to place their hands on the sick, and they will be healed."

19 When the Lord Jesus had finished talking with them, he was taken up into heaven and sat down in the place of honor at God's right hand. 20 And the disciples went everywhere and preached, and the Lord worked through them, confirming what they said by many miraculous signs.

The Accessibility of Parks

By James M. Decker

How many parks does a city need, anyway? Isn't one park enough? Do we actually need more parks if kids just play on their phones all day?

These questions are the types of possible pushback that a community leader might receive from a proposal to expand a community's parks. These are fair questions that a community leader should be able to answer. If the community leader does not receive good questions about a park proposal, then the leaders should ask similar questions in self-reflection.

Wanton government spending may be the purview of Washington and Austin, but local governments should have a purpose and a vision behind their actions.
