Minikheim

Brenda Louise Minikheim, 77, was born on October 14, 1943, in Robert Lee, Texas, to Jesse Martin Casey and Annie Rebecca Bessent. Brenda passed away on Saturday, May 1, 2021.

Brenda was one of a kind and an amazing storyteller. She loved her big family. Anyone she ever came in contact with was never a stranger to her. She was the most gentle person and very kind, which carried a sweetness in the tone of her voice that you could feel and hear. She loved taking care of plants and animals. Brenda enjoyed cooking and making delicious meals for her family and friends. There was always a good home remedy for anything that ailed you also, patient and caring for many. She loved her family from far and wide. She was an amazing wife, mother, grandmother, and friend. Her eyes always shined with loving smiles when she spoke of them. She will be greatly missed by many.

She is preceded in death by her mother and father; brother, (Elmer) William E. Casey; sisters, Dorothy Calder, Tommie Sue McDaniel; and stepdaughter, Renee Minikheim.

She is survived by her husband, Edwin (Butch) Minikheim; brother, Frank Casey; daughters, Angela Mueller, Deanna Contreras and husband Chris; stepsons, Mark Minikheim and Sean Minikheim; stepdaughter, Robin Shaw; grandsons, Chris Ponce, Jesus Ponce III, John Del Real, Brendan Contreras, Scott Minikheim, Seth Minikheim; granddaughters, Seana Arrechaga, Cassie Minikheim, Autumn Jock, Summer Jock, Olivia Minikheim; and 5 great-grandchildren.

The Trouble With Toughness

By James M. Decker

May is Mental Health Awareness Month in America, so I would be remiss not to devote one of this week's essays to my recurring thoughts on mental health in rural America. In this space, I have previously mentioned my friend Shannon Ferrell. He's a professor at Oklahoma State University and a nationally renowned farm and ranch estate and succession planning, which means he's also a leading expert in the complicated intergenerational feelings and emotions of rural America.

Drovers Magazine (one of America's leading livestock publications) recently published a powerful article by Jennifer Shike entitled "Toxic Grit: Is Our Greatest Strength Our Greatest Weakness on the Farm?" This article featured the wisdom of Professor Ferrell which he recently shared in an online seminar with agriculture producers. Shike opens with the phrase, "suck it up, buttercup," a familiar instruction to be tough, resilient, and self-reliant. Professor Ferrell points out that this mentality is not inherently bad. Independence helps us in many aspects of life, but he notes that this mindset can also teach us to be inward-facing. I have heard him say to crowds, "we in rural America are not good at talking about our feelings." Professor Ferrell says when we struggle, there's a stigma against talking about our feelings. We do not want to be judged or misunderstood, so we suffer in silence.

Professor Ferrell points out that agriculture is particularly stressful. The work is often physically demanding and regularly requires interaction with dangerous equipment and animals. Many outcomes are
